in general, anything that speeds the rate at which a food is digested and absorbed will increase the gi of a food women with their first outbreak at the time of delivery have the highest risk of transmitting the virus to the baby of critical plant conservation, preserve biodiversity, and reconnect indigenous communities to their